ORDER

Before the court is a motion filed by the pro se plaintiff on November 8, 2011. Essentially, the plaintiff seeks permission to “file first request of discovery and interrogatories.” The plaintiff further states that it is important to his case and will help him prove “that the warden has [sic] knowledge of staff misconduct, and has coverde [sic] up such incidents.” The court interprets the plaintiff’s motion as a request to serve interrogatories on the defendants. Hearing no objection from the defendants, the court finds that the motion is well-taken and is hereby GRANTED. However, the plaintiff is limited to serving only eight (8) total interrogatories (meaning 8 succinct questions), and they must be served upon the defendants before January 6, 2012.

SO ORDERED this, the 16th day of December, 2011.
